

The Blacksmith.

W. A. Mozart

1. Oh, the black-smith's a fine, stur - dy fel-low, Hard his hand but his heart's true and
2. Blow the fire, stir the coals, heap - ing more on, Till the iron's all a-glow, let it
3. Let the blows, strong and sure, quic - ly fall-ing, Hastethe work, for the iron fast is mel - low; See him stand there, his huge bel - lows blow - ing, With his roar on! While the smith high his ham - mer is swing - ing, Fier - y cool - ing; O! the smith, he's a fine stur - dy fel - low, Brave - ly strong brawn - y arms free and bare, See the fire in the fur - nace a - sparks fall in show'rs all a - round, And the sledge on the an - vil a - work - ing from morn - ing till night, Hard his hand, but his heart's true and glow - ing Bright its spark - le and flash, loud its blare.

5

8

11

ring - ing, Fills the air with its loud, clang - ing sound.
mel - low, Like his an - vil, he stands for the right.